

---

From: Deb Beacham [mailto:dbeacham1@me.com]
Sent: Wednesday, September 18, 2013 3:34 PM
To: Ed Dort
Cc: David Yates
Subject: Re:

Thanks for talking to him.

There's still time for him and/or LAT to at least take those two posts down so she at least sees something done in good faith - even if it is temporary until we can get together and work through facts and a plan.

We can't argue merit over email, and not without seeing everything at once (as with real mediation), so I'm keeping my fingers crossed he will at least do this for now so we have something to work with.

He's known about the hearing, and she has had to wait for this a good while - and he knows what she needs to see that he is serious about working together.

He has until about 5/5:30 to take the posts down or she will be in court and taking it from there. There's no bad faith

It's different guy to guy - and it would be different if he wrote those things to me. I know him... She is a young woman who has lost in many ways and continues to lose the more he does - let me rephrase - the more he does THIS way, and without her on board and while following a Plan.

Still trying...

On Sep 18, 2013, at 3:24 PM, Ed Dort wrote:

Deb,

I just spoke with Alex. He did get your voicemail and I encouraged him to call you back and hear what you have to say. As you mostly likely know, Krystal Moore has filed Criminal stalking and harassment charges against him. I asked Alex again if he did anything at all physically or verbally threatening. He stated an emphatically no and he has recorded everything. He may call you back, but I believe that he will not have time to speak until after hearing.

I will lose a great deal of faith if Krystal has fabricated or exaggerated charges in order to intimidate Alex. I guess that we will see what happens this evening. I have asked Alex to contact me with the results.

I asked Alex to listen to you with an open mind and ask whatever questions that he wants. He will be looking for details of why he should change his current path. I trust everyone can communicate clearly on objectives. Even if Alex elects to continue with the Blog and efforts, I respect him as a person of integrity due to the fact that he has shown nothing less to me.

Successfully yours,

Ed Dort
E.J. Dort & Associates
770-853-6088 mobile
ejdort@ejdort.com

"Veteran Owned Small Business"